Dissertation Award

Podium is pleased to announce the launch of our annual dissertation awards for 2022. These awards are aimed at encouraging and supporting MSc and PhD students in their research related to selection and assessment in talent management.

Quick Facts

- Dissertation award for MSc or PhD research into assessment and selection.
- Open to any student who has completed their work as part of their studies or chartered status in the last two years.
- Two £500 cash prizes with free access to Podium's BPS/EFPA verified training (valued at £1000).
- The submission deadline is August 31st 2022.

Dissertations will be evaluated based on the relevance of the topic and the dissertation's methodological rigour. An advisory letter from the applicant supervisors highlighting the important aspects of the research will be favourably received.

Eligibility

Applicants must be from a recognised university and the work must have been completed as part of their studies in the last two academic years. Applicants from minority groups including women, ethnic minorities and people with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

The format of the submission can be either of the submitted MSc dissertation, a journal manuscript, or a conference submission. The deadline for submissions is 31 August 2022.

Apply to Carl Francis, European Operations Director, Podium Systems Ltd, at carl.francis@podium365.com, submitting a cover letter, research document, and supervisor support letter.
